12 the initial mailing. Prior to mailing, KCC caused the addresses in the Class Member

6 976 updated addresses. KCC promptly re-mailed Notices Packages to the updated 7 addresses.

9 appear as an approximate quarter-page ad unit in two leading national newspapers.

11 the Wall Street Journal. Both Summary Notices were published on January 9, 2017.
12 In addition, KCC caused the Summary Notice to appear as a full-page notice in the 13 California and New York state editions of People magazine and as a two-fifths 14 digest-size notice in the California and New York state editions of the Parade
15 newspaper supplement. The Summary Notice appeared on page 68, within the Half

24 included an embedded link to the case website, appeared from December 23, 2016
25 through January 23, 2017. A total of 15,069,310 impressions were delivered to

21 KCC’s preliminary review of all claims has made an initial determination that 340

In compliance with 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b), the following documents referenced below are included on the CD that is enclosed with this letter:

7. 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b)(7)(A)-(B) – Names of Class Members/Estimate of Class Members: While Conair is in the process of gathering information on this issue, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b)(7)(A), at this time a complete list of names of class members as well as each State of residence is not available, because the parties do not presently know the names or current addresses of all the proposed settlement class members and will not learn this information until the Settlement is preliminarily approved and the Court authorizes dissemination of information about the Settlement through the Class Notice. At this time, the only available class member information that could indicate inclusion in the settlement but is not conclusive is the records gathered during class certification, which was restricted to two States. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b)(7)(B), it is impossible to provide any meaningful estimate of the potential size of the class based solely on that certification information.

8. 28 U.S.C. § 1715(b)(8) – Judicial Opinions Related to the Settlement: As the proposed Settlement is still pending final approval by the Court, there are no other opinions available at this time. As of November 22, 2016, there has been no written judicial opinion related to the settlement.

If for any reason you believe the enclosed information does not fully comply with 28 U.S.C. § 1715, please contact counsel immediately at either mtakahashi@rosensaba.com or (310) 285-1727 so that Conair can address any concerns or questions you may have.

Thank you.

Very truly yours,

GETTING MORE INFORMATION

24. How do I get more information? Page 8

BASIC INFORMATION

1. Why was this notice issued?

A Court authorized this notice because you have a right to know about a proposed Settlement of a class action lawsuit, and about all of your options, before the Court decides whether to approve it. This notice explains the lawsuit, the Settlement, your legal rights, the benefits that are available, who is eligible to receive them, and how to get them.

Honorable Roger B. Benitez of the United States District Court for the Southern District of California is overseeing this class action. The case is known as Czuchaj v. Conair Corporation, Case No. 13-cv-01901. The people who sued are called Plaintiffs, and the company they sued, Conair Corporation, is called the Defendant or Conair.

2. What is this lawsuit about?

The lawsuit claims that the Hair Dryers sold by Conair had defectively designed heating coils and electrical cords which caused the Hair Dryers to fail, and sometimes injure consumers. Specifically, the lawsuit contends Conair violated California and New York laws by falsely advertising and/or selling a product with alleged defects. Personal injury and property damage claims are not included in this Settlement and you are not giving up your right to make these claims whether you participate in this Settlement or not.

Conair denies all of the claims in the lawsuit.

3. What is a class action?

In a class action lawsuit, one or more people called Class Representatives (in this case, Cynthia Czuchaj and Patricia Carter) sue for all people who have similar claims. The people included in the class action are called a Class or Class members. One court resolves the issues for all Class members, except those people who exclude themselves from the Settlement.

4. Why is there a Settlement?

The Court did not decide in favor of Plaintiffs or Defendant. Instead, both sides agreed to a Settlement. The Settlement avoids the cost and risk of a trial, and makes money available to those affected. The Class Representatives and their attorneys think the Settlement is in the best interest of the Class.

WHO IS INCLUDED IN THE SETTLEMENT

To see if you can get a new hair dryer or money from this Settlement, you first have to find out if you are a Class member.

5. How do I know if I am part of the Settlement?

The Settlement includes everyone who purchased a Hair Dryer for personal, family or household use and not for resale either (a) in California from August 15, 2009 through August 31, 2016 and/or (b) in New York from August 15, 2010 through August 31, 2016. The Hair Dryers are Infiniti Pro 1875 watt model 259 or 279 hair dryers.

Questions? Call 1-844-286-9535 or go to www.ConairClassActionSettlement.com
The deadline to submit your claim is March 9, 2017

6. How do I know if my hair dryer is included?

Your hair dryer is included in the Settlement if the handle shows it is a “Model 259” or “Model 279.” This picture shows where to find the model number.

Your hair dryer must also include the letters “SE”, “SR” or “N” on the metal prong of the plug.

This picture shows where to find these letters.

YOU DO NOT NEED TO HAVE YOUR HAIR DRYER. You may still be eligible if you can provide independent proof of purchase such as a prior contact with Conair or a government agency which includes the date of such contact.

Questions? Call 1-844-286-9535 or go to www.ConairClassActionSettlement.com
The deadline to submit your claim is March 9, 2017

7. Are there exceptions to being included?

People who have a conflict of interest in this case, for example: Class Counsel; the judges who presided over the case; and the Defendant and its subsidiaries, affiliates, employees, officers, directors, agents, representatives, and their family members are not included in the Settlement.

THE SETTLEMENT BENEFITS—WHAT YOU GET

8. What does the Settlement provide?

Class members who bought a Hair Dryer made by Neumax will receive a replacement hair dryer. (Neumax hair dryers have a letter “N” on the metal prong of the electric plug). Class members who bought a Hair Dryer made by Silver Plan or Sun Luen, will receive a $5.00 check (these hair dryers have letters “SE” or “SR” on the metal prong of the electric plug).

9. What can I get from the Settlement?

Class members who bought a Hair Dryer made by Neumax will receive a comparable replacement hair dryer. Class members who bought a Hair Dryer made by Silver Plan or Sun Luen will receive a $5.00 check.

10. What am I giving up in exchange for the Settlement?

If the Settlement is approved and becomes final, all of the Court’s orders will apply to you and legally bind you. That means you won’t be able to sue, continue to sue, or be part of another lawsuit against Conair for the same legal issues raised in this case. The Settlement does not affect your right to sue Conair for personal injury or property damage caused by one of the Hair Dryers. The specific rights you are giving up are called Released Claims. The Released Claims are described in more detail in the Definitions Section of the Settlement Agreement at Section 12.1.2. The Settlement Agreement is available at www.ConairClassActionSettlement.com. If you have questions about the Released Claims or what they mean you can talk to one of the lawyers at the law firms listed in Question 18 for free, or you can talk with your own lawyer.

HOW TO GET A PAYMENT—SUBMITTING A CLAIM FORM

11. How do I get a payment or a replacement hair dryer, if qualified?

To get a payment from the Settlement you must submit a claim form by March 9, 2017. You may get the claim form at www.ConairClassActionSettlement.com. Claim forms are also available by calling 1-844-286-9535 or writing to the Claims Administrator at the address above. You must complete and submit your claim form by mailing it to Conair Claims Administrator, c/o KCC Class Action Services, P.O. Box 43416, Providence, RI 02940-3416.

To be considered valid, your claim form must include all of the requested information and your signature and be submitted or postmarked by March 9, 2017.

12. When will I get my payment or replacement hair dryer, if qualified?

The Court will hold a hearing on March 23, 2017 to decide whether to approve the Settlement. If Judge Benitez approves the Settlement, there may be appeals. It is always uncertain whether the appeals can be resolved and resolving them can take time. Please be patient.

Questions? Call 1-844-286-9535 or go to www.ConairClassActionSettlement.com
The deadline to submit your claim is March 9, 2017

EXCLUDING YOURSELF FROM THE SETTLEMENT

If you want to keep the right to sue or continue to sue Conair for the same claims in a different lawsuit, you must take steps to get out of the Class. This is called excluding yourself or opting-out of the Class.

13. How do I get out of the Settlement?

To exclude yourself from the Settlement, you must send a letter by mail stating you want to be excluded from the Czuchaj, et al. v. Conair Corporation lawsuit and Hair Dryer Settlement. Be sure to include your name, address, telephone number, and your signature. Your letter must be postmarked by March 9, 2017, to: Conair Exclusions, c/o KCC Class Action Services, P.O. Box 43416, Providence, RI 02940-3416.

You cannot exclude yourself by phone or email.

14. If I exclude myself, can I get money from this Settlement?

No. If you exclude yourself, you are telling the Court you don't want to be part of the Class in this Settlement. You can only get a payment if you stay in the Class and submit a claim form.

15. If I do not exclude myself, can I sue Conair for the same thing later?

No. Unless you exclude yourself, you give up the right to sue Conair for the claims that this Settlement resolves. You must exclude yourself from this Class to continue with your own lawsuit, unless your lawsuit is seeking money for personal injury or property damage caused by one of the Hair Dryers. If you have a pending lawsuit against Conair for the Conair Infiniti Pro 1875 watt model 259 or 279 hair dryer, you should speak to your lawyer in that lawsuit immediately.

THE LAWYERS REPRESENTING YOU

16. Do I have a lawyer in this case?

Yes. The Court appointed the law firms of Odenbreit Law, APC; Cohelan, Khoury & Singer; and Bisnar Chase, LLP to represent you and other Class members. The lawyers are referred to as Class Counsel. You will not be charged for the services of these lawyers in this case. If you want to be represented by your own lawyer, you may hire one at your own expense.

17. How will the lawyers be paid?

Class Counsel has not been paid for any of their work in this lawsuit. Class Counsel will ask the Court to award them attorneys' fees of up to $1,196,000 and reimbursement of their costs and expenses of up to $485,000. They will also ask the Court for a payment of up to $10,000 for each of the Class Representatives for their bringing the lawsuit and representing the Class. The Court may award less than these amounts. All of these amounts, as well as the cost to administer the Settlement, will be paid by Conair.

OBJECTING TO THE SETTLEMENT

You can tell the Court you do not agree with the Settlement or some part of it.

18. How do I tell the Court that I do not like the Settlement?

If you are a Class member, you can object to the Settlement. You can give reasons why you think the Court should not approve it. The Court will consider your views before making a decision. Objections must be submitted in writing, filed with the Court, and received by Class Counsel and Defendant's Counsel, no later than March 9, 2017. Objections must be signed and include:

- 1) the case name and number (Czuchaj, et al. v. Conair Corporation, Case No. 13-cv-01901);
- 2) your full name, current address, telephone number, and signature;
- 3) an explanation of the basis upon which you claim to be a Settlement Class member and proof you are a Settlement Class member;
- 4) the basis of your objection;
- 5) a statement confirming whether you intend to personally appear and/or testify at the Fairness Hearing.

If you plan to appear at the Fairness Hearing, you must file with the Court a notice of intention to appear no later than March 9, 2017. If you plan to appear with your attorney, you must include their name, address, and telephone number.

19. What is the difference between objecting and asking to be excluded?

Objecting is telling the Court you do not like something about the Settlement. You can object only if you stay in the Class (do not exclude yourself). Excluding yourself is telling the Court you do not want to be part of the Class. If you exclude yourself, you cannot object because the case no longer affects you.

THE COURT'S FAIRNESS HEARING

The Court will hold a hearing to decide whether to approve the Settlement. You may attend, but you don't have to.

20. When and where will the Court decide whether to approve the Settlement?

The Court will hold a Fairness Hearing at 10:30 a.m. on March 23, 2017, at the United States District Court for the Southern District of California, 221 West Broadway, San Diego, California, in Courtroom 5A. At this hearing, the Court will consider whether the Settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate. If there are objections, the Court will consider them. Judge Benitez will listen to people who have asked to speak at the Fairness Hearing (see Question 22). The Court may also decide how much to pay Class Counsel. After the Fairness Hearing, the Court will decide whether to approve the Settlement. We do not know how long these decisions will take.

The Fairness Hearing may be moved to a different time or date without notice. Changes will be posted at www.ConairClassActionSettlement.com.

21. Do I have to come to the hearing?

No. Class Counsel will answer any questions Judge Benitez may have. You are welcome to attend at your own expense. If you send an objection, you do not have to appear in Court to talk about it. As long as you filed your written objection on time, the Court will consider it. You may also pay your own lawyer to attend, but it is not necessary.

22. May I speak at the hearing?

Yes. You may ask the Court for permission to speak at the Fairness Hearing. To do so, you must file a notice of intention to appear with the Clerk of the Court (see Question 18) by March 9, 2017. Be sure to include your name, address, telephone number, and your signature. You cannot speak at the hearing if you exclude yourself.

IF YOU DO NOTHING

23. What happens if I do nothing at all?

If you do nothing, you won't get any money from this Settlement. If the Settlement is approved and becomes final, all of the Court's orders will apply to you and legally bind you. That means you will give up your right to start a lawsuit, continue with a lawsuit, or be part of any other lawsuit against Conair about the same legal issues raised in this case. You will keep your right to sue Conair for claims for personal injury or property damage caused by one of the Hair Dryers.

With Speech, Prime Minister Prepares to Walk 'Brexit' Tightrope

By STEVEN ERLANGER
LONDON — Prime Minister Theresa May, who has for many weeks evaded debate over how Britain will exit from the European Union with the phrase “Brexit means Brexit,” promises more clarity in a speech later this month.

She is expected to speak two months before she intends to invoke Article 50 of the Lisbon Treaty, formally beginning a two-year negotiation with Brussels on leaving the European Union, and just after the Supreme Court rules on whether Parliament must approve that invocation.

The Supreme Court, the United Kingdom's highest court of appeal in civil cases, is expected to rule against the government and require that Parliament have a say. A short bill has already been prepared, however, and no one expects lawmakers of either house to oppose the result of the June “Brexit” referendum at this stage.

So Mrs. May will speak. But what will she say, especially when she insists that she does not want to give away her bargaining position with Brussels too early? And how will she calm down the fervid, angry and partisan atmosphere around the whole topic — both in the country at large and, more important, in her own Conservative government?

The most recent indication of Brexit madness surrounded the sudden resignation of Ivan Rogers, Britain's ambassador to the European Union, who charged in an email to his staff that the government had “muddled thinking” about Brexit and had not understood what the 27 other nations in the bloc would accept in an exit negotiation.

Mr. Rogers, who had been intimately involved in former Prime Minister David Cameron's vain effort to secure a winning new arrangement for Britain from Brussels, was being challenged or ignored by those in the government who, unlike Mrs. May herself, favored Brexit from the start.

Nor did he get on with her two closest political advisers, Fiona Hill and Nick Timothy. They reportedly resented Mr. Rogers's views, which somehow made it into the press, that the government was unprepared for the negotiations, overly optimistic about getting a special deal and utopian about how long it would take to negotiate a separate trade agreement with the European Union.

KIRSTY WIGGLESWORTH/ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prime Minister Theresa May has promised to clarify, in a speech this month, her plans for Britain's exit from the European Union.

The press wrote happily about a revolt of the “mandarins” — the permanent civil service — over Mrs. May's leadership, with those opposed to Brexit judging the loss of Mr. Rogers and his expertise a body blow to the country's future. Brexiters largely considered his decision to quit both welcome and inevitable.

Brexit advocates, like Iain Duncan Smith and John Redwood, dismissed Mr. Rogers's email as pompous and whiny and pressed for a known Brexit to replace him in Brussels. David Davis, the Brexitor who heads the new cabinet office called the Department for Exiting the E.U. (Dexu), allowed his top civil servant, Oly Robbins, to try to downgrade the ambassador's job so the entire Brussels Embassy would report to him, and not to the Foreign Office.

The Foreign Office successfully fended off Mr. Davis and demanded to keep the Brussels job. That went to Tim Barrow, a former ambassador to Moscow and the current political director of the Foreign Office. Mr. Barrow, a security expert, is considered a sensible, intelligent and safe pair of hands.

Herself a quiet opponent of Brexit, Mrs. May promised to carry out the wishes of the British people as expressed in the June referendum that caused Mr. Cameron to resign only a year after he won a surprising majority for the Conservatives.

But it was the longstanding anti-European minority in the party, enhanced by defections to the pro-Brexit U.K. Independence Party, that forced the referendum on a court by with other priorities, like jobs, crime, security and the failings of the National Health Service.

While for most Brexit Conservatives, the main issue was British sovereignty and freedom from European Union rules, regulations, court decisions and fees, the main concern of the 52 percent of Britons who favored Brexit was immigration. Aaron Banks, the prime funder of UKIP and one of the Brexit campaigns, said in an interview. He paid for a private poll of 50,000 voters himself.

Behind concerns about security, jobs and the health service, Mr. Banks said, was a widely felt judgment that immigration numbers were too large and out of control, and that such control could only be restored by leaving the European Union.

Therein lies Mrs. May's dilemma. Diplomats and officials who have had some discussions with her advisers and would not be named because of the confidential nature of those talks say she has two priorities that will limit her negotiating options.

First, vital to Conservatives who consider sovereignty most important is getting Britain out from under the jurisdiction of the European Court of Justice. Second, control over immigration is important to most Brexit voters.

The logic of these two priorities would mean that Britain could no longer be a part of the European Union's single market for trade in goods and services and freedom of travel and labor. Nor could it be a part of the customs union for goods alone, because that also would mean both paying Brussels and having no ability to strike separate trade deals with China, say, or Washington.

So the only logical future relationship would seem to be a new trade deal in goods and services that Britain would have to negotiate with the rest of the European Union — a negotiation that Mr. Rogers suggested, to Mrs. May's unhappiness, could take a decade.

In the meantime, he had suggested, Britain should negotiate a transitional agreement that would preserve free trade and would probably look a lot like Britain's current membership — with the obligations, but without the right to participate in decision-making.

Without such a transition, Britain risks a “hard Brexit,” with considerable damage to its trade and especially to its dominant financial services sector.

But those conclusions are politically unpopular as well, especially with Brexiters like Mr. Davis who believe that the European Union needs Britain more than it needs the European Union, and like Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson, who likes to say that Britain can have its cake and eat it, too, and that Britain can both control immigration and still remain in the single market.

The loss of access to the single market could also have serious implications for Britain's integrity, since Scotland's nationalist leaders threaten a new independence referendum if it can no longer trade freely with the European Union.

But logic and politics do not always fit together nicely. So Mrs. May holds her fire, remains silent about her priorities and their costs and simply promises she will somehow produce a British exit that satisfies everyone.

In the meantime, however, having chided United States Secretary of State John Kerry for his speech criticizing the Israeli government and settlement expansion in what appeared to be an effort to align Britain with President-elect Donald J. Trump, Downing Street is suggesting that it has finally secured a White House meeting for Mrs. May with Mr. Trump sometime in February.

Mr. Trump confirmed the meeting in a Twitter post on Saturday, saying: “I look very much forward to meeting Prime Minister Theresa May in Washington in the Spring. Britain, a longtime U.S. ally, is very special!” Indeed, a Britain out of the European Union is going to need the so-called special relationship with the United States more than ever.

Ireland Revisits a Stringent Ban on Abortion

By SINEAD O'SHEA

DUBLIN — An assembly of Irish citizens convened by Parliament is considering changes to one of the most divisive policies in the country: the near-total ban on abortions, which has been enshrined in Ireland's Constitution since 1983.

The group, the 100-member Citizens' Assembly led by Mary Laffoy, a Supreme Court judge, does not have the power to change the law. But its mandate from Parliament — to examine the full range of medical, legal and ethical issues surrounding abortion — suggests a willingness to revisit the ban, one of the most stringent in the Western world.

Over the last three months, the assembly has received more than 13,500 comments from the public — more than 1,000 of which have been published online. It pored over these submissions at the Grand Hotel Malahide over the weekend, along with testimony from experts, and is scheduled to issue a report this year.

Abortion was already illegal in Ireland before 1983, but the Eighth Amendment gave “the right to life of the unborn” equal status to “the right to life of the mother” under the Constitution. The amendment was enacted through a voter referendum, and can be altered — or abandoned — only via another referendum.

Several highly publicized cases since then have contributed to and reflected a shift in the public's mood, however. In 2012, a 31-year-old woman, Savita Halappanavar, died from septic shock while having a miscarriage after a hospital denied her an abortion that might have saved her life.

And last year, a United Nations committee ruled that Ireland had violated a woman's rights by forcing her to travel abroad for an abortion even though severe congenital defects had been diagnosed in the fetus. Legal uncertainty over how to define “the unborn” has long dogged the amendment, and the assembly was seen as one response to the panel's criticisms.

It is common for women in Ireland to travel to countries such as Britain and the Netherlands for abortions. Figures from Britain's National Health Service showed that more than 3,400 women gave Irish addresses to British abortion clinics in 2015.

That said, Ireland remains a conservative society, and the Roman Catholic Church opposes any change in the law. “We believe that every unborn child, irrespective of his or her medical condition or the circumstances of his or her birth, has the right to be treated equally before the law,” the bishops' conference said in a statement.

Submissions posted online expressed a wide range of views, with many of them offering deeply personal perspectives.

Leslie Spillane, a woman in her 20s from Cork, in southwestern Ireland, wrote that several of her friends had traveled abroad to terminate their pregnancies.

“These friends of mine are also the lucky ones, they have been able to borrow the money for the travel, and they have had friends they could tell,” she wrote. “Abortions happen, every day. Making them illegal doesn't stop women needing, or wanting them, or inflicting them on themselves — there will always be coat hangers, broken bottles, painkillers, stairs to fall down, fists to hit, medicines to swallow.”

In a phone interview, she said that “even if you don't agree with abortion, it's not morally acceptable to force your views onto others.”

Defenders of the law were equally adamant. “Abortion, in our firm belief, is the taking of human life irrespective of the stage of pregnancy,” wrote Kathleen Gleeson and her husband, Raymond Gleeson, from County Kerry, in southwestern Ireland.

Valerie Marjoram, a woman in her 30s in County Kildare, just west of Dublin, described herself as a feminist who opposed abortion on religious grounds. “I find it appalling that a certain brand of feminism would put more effort into obtaining the legal sanction of murdering one's own child than fighting for the right to carry a child to term without losing one's pay, career path, promotion, college place,” she said in a phone interview. “The fact that abortion is a culture of selfishness where even life can be rescinded if it happens at the ‘wrong time.’”

The Eighth Amendment has been subject to legal and political challenges over the years.

In 1992, Ireland's highest court upheld the right to an abortion if the mother's life is at risk, including from suicide, but how to interpret that right remains in dispute. In 1992, voters approved an amendment to the Constitution to allow women to travel abroad for abortions and to receive information about abortion services abroad. And in that year, and again in 2002, voters rejected amendments that would have removed the threat of suicide as grounds for a legal abortion.

Conor O'Mahony, a lecturer in law at University College Cork, says the continued contentiousness reveals problems with the wording of the ban.

“The Eighth Amendment doesn't work as a means of regulating abortion, whether you are coming from the anti-abortion or abortion rights perspective,” he said in a phone interview.

He said public opinion had been shifting in favor of legalizing abortion, but predicted that the debate would continue for years even if a referendum were to take place.

Gerard Whyte, a professor of law at Trinity College Dublin, said in a phone interview that it would be unwise to simply repeal the amendment, as some abortion-rights advocates seek.

“If there is no constitutional protection for the unborn, then there is a problem and we're into uncharted territory,” he said. “I'm simply warning about a situation whereby people decide to repeal the Eighth but don't add anything else.”

EXHIBIT I

If you bought a Conair[®] Infiniti Pro hair dryer, a class action lawsuit may affect your rights.

Includes 1875 watt Infiniti Pro models 259 and 279

A federal court authorized this notice. This is not a solicitation from a lawyer.

- Consumers have sued Conair Corporation (“Conair”) claiming its Infiniti Pro 259 and 279 model 1875 watt hair dryers are defective. Personal injury and property damage claims are not included in or affected by this lawsuit.
- The Court has allowed the lawsuit to be a class action on behalf of California and New York residents that purchased a Conair 259 or 279 Infiniti Pro 1875 watt hair dryer, anytime after August 15, 2009.
- The Court has not decided whether Conair did anything wrong. There is no money available now and no guarantee there will be. However, your legal rights are affected, and you have a choice to make.

YOUR LEGAL RIGHTS AND OPTIONS IN THIS LAWSUIT:
DO NOTHING	Stay in this class action lawsuit. Await the outcome. Give up certain rights. By doing nothing, you keep the possibility of sharing in money or benefits that may be recovered through trial or settlement, but you will be legally bound by orders and judgments of the Court and will give up the right to sue Conair separately for the legal claims in this lawsuit.
ASK TO BE EXCLUDED	Get out of this class action lawsuit. Get nothing from it. Keep rights. If you ask to be excluded, you will keep your rights to sue Conair separately for the same legal claims made in this lawsuit, but you will give up your right to possibly share in money or benefits if they are awarded in this case.

- These options are explained in this notice. To exclude yourself, you must act by August 9, 2016.

BASIC INFORMATION

1. Why did I get this notice?

A court authorized this notice because you, or someone in your family, may have purchased a 259 or 279 Infiniti Pro 1875 watt hair dryer sold by Conair sometime between August 15, 2009 and now. The Court has certified this case as a class action lawsuit and you have the right to know about the lawsuit, and about your options, before the case goes to trial. This notice explains the lawsuit, your legal rights, and your options.

Judge Roger T. Benitez of the United States District Court for the Southern District of California is overseeing this case. The case is titled, Cynthia L. Czuchaj, et al. v. Conair Corporation, Case No. 13CV01901 BEN (RBB).

2. What is a class action and who is involved?

In a class action lawsuit, one or more people, called “Class Representatives” (in this case Cynthia L. Czuchaj and Patricia Carter) sue on behalf of other people that have been affected by the same unlawful conduct and harmed in the same way. Together all of these people are called a “Class” or “Class Members”. The Court resolves the claims made in the lawsuit for all Class Members, except for those who exclude themselves from the Class. The people who filed the lawsuit are called the Plaintiffs, and the company they sued, Conair, is called the Defendant.

3. Why is this lawsuit a class action?

The Court decided that the lawsuit satisfies all of the requirements for class certification under Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The Court’s Orders and Opinions explaining its decision are available at www.ConairClassAction.com.

THE CLAIMS IN THE LAWSUIT

4. What is this lawsuit about?

The lawsuit is about whether the 259 and 279 Infiniti Pro 1875 watt hair dryers sold by Conair have defectively designed heating coils and electrical cords which cause the dryers to fail, and sometimes injure consumers. The lawsuit claims these Conair hair dryers have (1) a motor that shakes excessively causing coils inside the dryer to touch, short circuit, and in some instances, shoot coils or flames from the barrel (the “Coil Defect”), and (2) an electrical cord that is too short and stiff that, when bent, the cord can break wires and electrical insulation causing electrical shock and fire (the “Cord Defect”).

Personal injury and property damage claims are not included in or affected by this lawsuit. If you have been injured or your property has been damaged by one of these Conair hair dryers, you may bring a separate lawsuit against Conair for reimbursement of medical expenses, pain and suffering, and damage to property. Staying in this lawsuit will not prevent you from bringing those claims, but you must hire a separate attorney and bring a separate claim against Conair.

5. How does Conair respond to the lawsuit?

Conair states that their 259 and 279 Infiniti Pro 1875 watt hair dryers are properly designed and do not contain any defects. They further claim that any problems were caused by failure to follow their safety instructions.

6. Has the Court decided who is right?

No. The Court has not made a decision regarding the claims made in this lawsuit. The Plaintiffs will present their case and Conair will present their defenses at a trial.

7. What benefits are the Plaintiffs asking in this lawsuit?

The Plaintiffs have filed this lawsuit to obtain reimbursement of some or all of the price consumers paid to purchase the hair dryers.

WHO IS INCLUDED IN THE CLASS

8. How do I know if I am part of the Class?

The Class includes: All California and New York residents who purchased either a model 259 or 279 Infiniti Pro 1875 watt hair dryer, between August 15, 2009 and the present, sold by Defendant Conair Corporation directly or through a retailer for primarily personal, family, or household purposes, and not for resale.

9. Which Conair hair dryers are included?

Infiniti Pro by Conair 1875 watt hair dryers with model number 259 and 279 are included in this lawsuit. Below is a picture of the hair dryer (colors may vary).

10. I haven't had a coil or cord issue with my hair dryer, am I included?

Yes. You are included in this lawsuit even if your hair dryer has not had a cord or coil issue yet.

YOUR RIGHTS AND OPTIONS

If you believe you are a Class Member, you have to decide whether to stay in the Class or exclude yourself from it by August 9, 2016.

11. What happens if I do nothing?

If you do nothing, you are choosing to stay in the Class. You will keep the possibility of receiving money or benefits from this lawsuit, but you will give up your right to sue or continue to sue Conair – as part of any other lawsuit – for the same legal claims made in this class action. You will be bound by all orders and judgments of the Court.

12. What happens if I exclude myself?

If you exclude yourself from the Class, you will not be able to receive any money or benefits from this lawsuit if they are awarded or obtained, but you will keep your right to sue Conair as part of another lawsuit for the same claims made in this case. You will not be bound by any of the Court's orders or judgments.

13. How do I ask to be excluded from the lawsuit?

To ask to be excluded, you must complete and sign the enclosed "Opt-Out Form". The Opt-Out Form must be postmarked no later than August 9, 2016 and mailed to:

Conair Class Action Notice Administrator
P.O. Box 43416, Providence, RI 02940-3416

QUESTIONS? Call 1-844-286-9535 Toll Free, or visit www.ConairClassAction.com

14. If I don't exclude myself, can I sue Conair for the same thing later?

No. Unless you exclude yourself, you give up the right to sue Conair for the claims made in this lawsuit. If you have a pending lawsuit against Conair for the same claims made in this lawsuit, speak to your lawyer in that lawsuit immediately.

THE LAWYERS REPRESENTING YOU

15. Do I have a lawyer in this case?

The Court appointed the law firms of Odenbreit Law, APC, Cohelan Khoury & Singer, and Bisnar|Chase LLP to represent you and other Class Members. Together, the lawyers are called Class Counsel. You will not be charged for the work the lawyers have and will perform. If you want to be represented by your own lawyer, you may hire one at your own expense.

16. How will the lawyers be paid?

If you participate in this lawsuit, you will not be required to personally pay attorneys' fees or expenses to Class Counsel. This is true whether or not they win or lose this case. Class Counsel will be paid only if the Class wins at trial or if the case settles. If that happens, the attorneys' fees will be paid by Conair or as a percentage of any monetary judgment or settlement in favor of the Class as ordered by the Court. If there is no recovery, there will be no attorneys' fees paid to the lawyers.

THE TRIAL

17. How and when will the Court decide who is right?

Judge Benitez set the case for trial on September 13, 2016 in the United States District Court for the Southern District of California, 333 West Broadway, San Diego, California 92101. During the trial, a jury or the Judge will hear all of the evidence and decide whether Plaintiffs or Conair are right about the claims in the lawsuit. There is no guarantee Plaintiffs will win, or that they will get money or benefits for the Class.

18. Do I have to come to the trial?

No. You do not need to attend the trial. Class Counsel will present the case for Plaintiffs and Conair will present its defenses. You, or your own lawyer, are welcome to come at your own expense.

GETTING MORE INFORMATION

19. Are more details about this lawsuit available?

This notice summarizes the class action lawsuit against Conair. More details are contained in the court documents, which can be reviewed at www.ConairClassAction.com. Trying to Know The Unknowable: Why Attackers Strike

Long before Omar Mateen's victims had all been identified, the presumptive nominees for president of the United States were clashing on a seemingly narrow question:

THE INTERPRETER
MAX FISHER

Was the massacre an act of "radical Islam"? Donald J. Trump and other Republicans have long used the phrase, partly as a way of suggesting that President Obama privileges political correctness over keeping Americans safe. Democrats have avoided it for fear of exacerbating Islamophobia and legitimizing terrorists' claims to represent a religion. On Monday morning, Hillary Clinton broke with Mr. Obama using the term herself to describe Mr. Mateen, the Florida security guard who perpetrated the mass shooting.

This debate over terminology might seem like a distraction, but it also speaks to the hardest and most contentious question of all: When a troubled young man murders dozens of people, invoking a group with which he appears to have few real links, how do we classify, and thereby make sense of, what he did?

Orlando, like previous attacks, has prompted an obsessive search for clues that might allow us to place this violence within a familiar context.

Mr. Trump, by citing "radical Islam," urges a narrative of clashing civilizations and war on terror. Mr. Obama, meanwhile, has focused his outrage on what he sees as the laxity of America's gun laws. And gay rights groups have placed the attack within a long history of homophobic violence.

The question of Mr. Mateen's motivation has ramifications that go well beyond Orlando. Those who seek stricter gun control have an incentive to emphasize his history of domestic violence, threatening statements, emotional problems and contact with the F.B.I. Those who desire a stronger American response to Islamist terrorism are motivated to see evidence for his ties to the Islamic State, the extremists he cited in a 911 call as the attack was underway.

And for gay rights advocates who yearn for recognition of the scope of their persecution, Mr. Mateen's targeting of a gay club during gay pride month is paramount.

But as more details of Mr. Mateen's life emerge — including reports that he visited the nightclub, Pulse, and used a gay dating app — they have blurred rather than clarified these competing narratives. The question of why this attack happened, and the underlying question of what to do about it, have only become harder to answer.

The discussion of these scattered and contradictory clues to Mr. Mateen's motivations has become a proxy for an argument over whose narrative is truest and most urgent.

As social media networks and cable news shows in the United States inevitably split along partisan lines, already widened by the presidential campaign, these narratives are increasingly framed as exclusive rather than complementary.

Efforts to divine a motivation speak to something deeper than politics: a desire to make sense of seemingly senseless violence. Offering an explanation — whether it is radical Islam or mental illness or homophobia or gun access — is also a way of trying to comfort ourselves by asserting false clarity over something that is ultimately unknowable: the chain of personal experiences and decisions that led this man to murder 49 people in Orlando.

"There is a strong impulse, particularly in America, to do something" after a tragedy like this," said Will McCants, a terrorism expert at the Brookings Institution in Washington. "If we know why the tragedy happened, we'll know what to do."

In truth, Mr. McCants said, terrorist attacks have "a confluence of causes, and because we're dealing with the human mind and the interplay of complex social and political factors, it's difficult to separate the crucial from the incidental." This uncertainty is particularly acute with the Islamic State's strategy of inspiring so-called lone wolf attacks, through propaganda that encourages supporters around the world to act on their own.

This decentralization has given the group a seemingly global reach, but put decision making in the hands of individuals who identify with it for their own reasons and with their own agendas. It has blurred the distinction between the motivation of the group and of the individual, between violence that is strategic or that is senseless, between terrorist attacks rooted in ideology and other mass shootings reflecting more personal grievances.

A memorial for the victims of the Orlando shooting took place on Tuesday outside the Dr. Phillips Center for the Performing Arts.

"The motives of lone wolves are tough to pin down," Mr. McCants said. "By definition, they're not part of an organization, so their motives for attacking are bound to be more idiosyncratic."

The holy grail of terrorism studies has, for years, been to identify a standard model or road map for why individuals attack. But repeated scholarly attempts have all failed. It is a deeply personal decision that people make for reasons that are almost entirely individual, and which may or may not even be political.

"How individuals get to this point is really complex, and if we try to boil it down to one factor we're going to miss a lot of that complexity," said Paul Gill, a lecturer at University College London who studies terrorism. "And it's in that complexity that we're going to really understand what happened."

This reveals a difficult truth. External factors such as ideology and access to guns, though important, cannot fully explain why someone decides to lash out. Even if every detail of Mr. Mateen's life were ultimately revealed, it would still not fully answer that most crucial question.

By shoe-horning these attacks into familiar narratives — gun violence, homophobia, jihadism — we can make sense of them, helping us to grieve, and also to process the danger and how to respond to it. Even more, it allows us to validate a pre-existing worldview or belief whose truth we feel has gone unacknowledged.

But because no single narrative is ever sufficient, the debate is always unsettled — and always raging.

It's not just Americans who are grappling with this. In Western Europe, terrorism has become interlocked in debates over immigration and cultural inclusivity — how traditionally secular societies can or should tolerate growing Muslim minorities.

As in the United States, these debates hinge on questions of individual motive that are impossible to pin down: Are terrorists motivated by religion? By economie marginalization?

We want to live in a world where these questions have identifiable answers, and politicians are happy to tell us that they do, so that they can present themselves as the solution.

"Appreciate the congrats for being right on radical Islamic terrorism," Mr. Trump wrote on Twitter on Sunday. "I don't want congrats, I want toughness & vigilance. We must be smart!"

The "radical Islam" narrative, of all those available, offers perhaps the clearest appeal. It portrays attackers and potential attackers as a monolith, identifiable by common features that are alien to America's non-Muslim majority. And it frames terrorism within the familiar context of a war — something that can be won.

Mr. Obama's emphasis on access to deadly weapons, however, presents terrorism as an extension of crime and therefore something that can only be managed. Still, this approach offers its own villains — politicians and lobbyists who oppose tighter gun regulations — as well as a simple way for thinking about the threat and how to curtail it.

What these narratives all tend to play down or deny is the degree to which terrorism is driven by individual people making individual decisions.

Political leaders do not want to admit this, as it requires conceding that violence is never fully preventable. Nor can the Islamic State acknowledge that its "soldiers" might sometimes be little more than disturbed individuals grasping for justification. And victims — who could be said to include all citizens of any country targeted by an attack — do not want their trauma to be robbed of meaning.

That may be what is so disturbing about the ultimate unknowability of Mr. Mateen's motivations: not just that there will inevitably be another attack on another soft target in another unsuspecting city, but also that its cause can and will be guessed at, but never really understood.

LEGAL NOTICE TO CALIFORNIA AND NEW YORK RESIDENTS

If you bought a Conair® Infiniti Pro Hair Dryer, a class action lawsuit may affect your rights.

Consumers filed a class action lawsuit against Conair Corp. ("Conair") claiming that its Infiniti Pro 259 and 279 model 1875 watt hair dryers are defective (the "Hair Dryers"). The lawsuit, Czuchaj, et al. v. Conair Corporation, Case No. 13CV01901 BEN (RBB), is pending in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California. The Court decided this lawsuit should be a class action on behalf of a "Class," or group of people that could include you. There is no money available now and no guarantee that there will be.

ARE YOU INCLUDED?

You are included in the Class if you are a California or New York resident who bought a Hair Dryer any time from August 15, 2009 until now.

WHAT IS THIS CASE ABOUT?

The lawsuit claims the design of the Hair Dryers cause: (1) the motor to shake excessively, causing coils to touch, short circuit, and in some cases, shoot coils or flames from the barrel ("Coil Defect"), and (2) the electrical cord connected to the base of some Hair Dryers is too short and stiff, and bending the cord can break wires and electrical insulation, causing electrical shock and fire ("Cord Defect"). Conair denies these claims and contends the Hair Dryers are not defectively designed. The Court has not decided who is right. The lawyers for the Class will have to prove their claims in Court. The lawsuit does not involve claims for personal injuries or property damage.

WHO REPRESENTS YOU?

The Court has appointed Odenbreit Law, APC, Cohelan Khoury & Singer, and BISNAR|CHASE LLP to represent the Class as "Class Counsel." You don't have to pay Class Counsel or anyone else to participate. If Class Counsel obtains money or benefits for the Class, they will ask the Court for an award of fees and costs, which would be paid separately by Conair or out of any money recovered for the Class. You may hire your own lawyer to appear in Court for you, but if you do, you have to pay that lawyer.

WHAT ARE YOUR OPTIONS?

If you do nothing, you are choosing to stay in the Class. You will be legally bound by all orders and judgments of the Court, and you won't be able to sue Conair, as part of any other lawsuit, for the claims made in this lawsuit. If money or benefits are obtained, you will be able to request a share. If you do not want to stay in the Class, you must ask to be excluded from it by August 9, 2016. If you ask to be excluded, you will not be able to get any money or benefits from this lawsuit. You will not be bound by any of the Court's decisions and you will keep your right to sue Conair for these claims in a different lawsuit.

GETTING MORE INFORMATION.

If you want a detailed notice or other documents about this lawsuit and your rights, call, visit the website, or write to: Conair Class Action Notice Administrator, P.O. Box 43416 Providence RI 02940-3416.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Security Council Breaks Precedent In Condemning Targeting of Gays

By SOMINI SENGUPTA

UNITED NATIONS — For years, diplomats were more comfortable talking about nuclear warheads than sexual orientation.

Sexual orientation was one of those subjects burdened with too many cultural sensitivities. American officials, even if they wanted to advance it on the diplomatic agenda, were wary of offending their allies, not least in the Islamic world.

The attack on a gay nightclub in Orlando, Fla., moved the needle.

In its aftermath, the United States corralled an unlikely group of countries to support a United Nations Security Council statement that condemned the attack for "targeting persons as a result of their sexual orientation." Even Egypt and Russia — not known for embracing their gay and lesbian citizens — signed on, after what diplomats called intense consultations.

Earlier in the day, the United States delivered a pointed rebuke to countries that block gay rights at the United Nations, urging them to "contribute more than condolences and condemnations" after the Orlando attack.

And American embassies in several countries, including India, which still has an anti-sodomy law on the books, draped themselves in the colors of the rainbow flag that signifies gay pride.

The Security Council statement, which was drafted by the United States and issued Monday, carries no legal weight. But it is the first time that the powerful institution, with the capacity to authorize wars, weighed in on sexual orientation.

Homosexuality is still a crime in 73 of the world's 193 countries, according to the International Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans and Intersex Association; in 13, the death penalty can be applied. In some countries, like Egypt, laws against "debauchery" are used to target gays. Russian law prohibits what it calls "propaganda on nontraditional sexual relationships," which critics call a thinly veiled measure to harass gay men and lesbians.

"We're hopefully moving into an era when gross acts of violence are condemned by global leaders rather than when violence motivated by sexual orientation or gender identity is 'dismissed as irrelevant or unworthy,'" said Jessica Stern, the executive director of OutRight Action International, an advocacy group.

Still, she said, the United States will be able to sway others only if it can protect its own citizens. "The more we demonstrate respect for Muslim Americans and the more violence we prevent domestically by passing meaningful gun control, the more credible we are likely to be as a global leader," she said.

Gay rights have steadily moved up the foreign policy agenda in recent years.

In 2011, the United Nations Human Rights Council for the first time passed a resolution condemning discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity. In 2014, Secretary General Ban Ki-moon, an outspoken advocate for gay rights, announced that the United Nations would recognize same-sex unions of employees who are married in a jurisdiction where same-sex marriage is legal, including New York.

But gay rights still remain a point of contention.

Just last month, many countries, including dozens belonging to the Organization of Islamic Cooperation, blocked the participation of 22 advocacy groups, some representing gay, lesbian and transgender people, from an international meeting devoted to stemming the AIDS epidemic. The United States lobbied to allow them to participate.

Gay rights have been front and center in American diplomacy at least since 2011, when Hillary Clinton, then the secretary of state, declared at the United Nations in Geneva that "gay rights are human rights, and human rights are gay rights."

In 2015, the State Department appointed Randy W. Berry as its first envoy for the human rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex people.

The attack in Orlando on Sunday enabled the United States to elevate the issue on the diplomatic agenda. On Monday morning, as the world was still absorbing the news of the attack, the alternate United States ambassador to the United Nations, David Pressman, told the 193-member General Assembly that condolences were not enough.

"If we are united in our outrage by the killing of so many — and we are — let us be equally united around the basic premise of upholding the universal dignity of all persons regardless of who they love, not just around condemning the terrorists who kill them," Mr. Pressman said.

LEGAL NOTICE TO CALIFORNIA AND NEW YORK RESIDENTS

If you bought a Conair® Infiniti Pro Hair Dryer, a class action lawsuit may affect your rights.

Consumers filed a class action lawsuit against Conair Corp. ("Conair") claiming that its Infiniti Pro 259 and 279 model 1875 watt hair dryers are defective (the "Hair Dryers"). The lawsuit, Czuchaj, et al. v. Conair Corporation, Case No. 13CV01901 BEN (RBB), is pending in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California. The Court decided this lawsuit should be a class action on behalf of a "Class," or group of people that could include you. There is no money available now and no guarantee that there will be.

ARE YOU INCLUDED?

You are included in the Class if you are a California or New York resident who bought a Hair Dryer any time from August 15, 2009 until now.

WHAT IS THIS CASE ABOUT?

The lawsuit claims the design of the Hair Dryers cause: (1) the motor to shake excessively, causing coils to touch, short circuit, and in some cases, shoot coils or flames from the barrel ("Coil Defect"), and (2) the electrical cord connected to the base of some Hair Dryers is too short and stiff, and bending the cord can break wires and electrical insulation, causing electrical shock and fire ("Cord Defect"). Conair denies these claims and contends the Hair Dryers are not defectively designed. The Court has not decided who is right. The lawyers for the Class will have to prove their claims in Court. The lawsuit does not involve claims for personal injuries or property damage.

WHO REPRESENTS YOU?

The Court has appointed Odenbreit Law, APC, Cohelan Khoury & Singer, and BISNAR|CHASE LLP to represent the Class as "Class Counsel." You don't have to pay Class Counsel or anyone else to participate. If Class Counsel obtains money or benefits for the Class, they will ask the Court for an award of fees and costs, which would be paid separately by Conair or out of any money recovered for the Class. You may hire your own lawyer to appear in Court for you, but if you do, you have to pay that lawyer.

WHAT ARE YOUR OPTIONS?

If you do nothing, you are choosing to stay in the Class. You will be legally bound by all orders and judgments of the Court, and you won't be able to sue Conair, as part of any other lawsuit, for the claims made in this lawsuit. If money or benefits are obtained, you will be able to request a share. If do not want to stay in the Class, you must ask to be excluded from it by August 9, 2016. If you ask to be excluded, you will not be able to get any money or benefits from this lawsuit. You will not be bound by any of the Court's decisions and you will keep your right to sue Conair for these claims in a different lawsuit.

If you want a detailed notice or other documents about this lawsuit and your rights, call, visit the website, or write to: Conair Class Action Notice Administrator, P.O. Box 43416 Providence RI 02940-3416.

FINDING MY VOICE AGAIN

Depression and alcoholism nearly killed him, but the Run-DMC star has a new lease on life
By JEFF NELSON

For years Darryl "DMC" McDaniels, a member of the groundbreaking hip-hop group Run-DMC, had struggled with alcoholism and depression. There was strife within the band; he had been hospitalized with pancreatitis; and in 1999 he was diagnosed with spasmodic dysphonia, a throat condition he felt was robbing him of his voice. But McDaniels, 52, says he didn't really understand darkness until the day in 2000 when, in a reflective mood, he was asking his mom about the details of his birth and she seemed uneasy. Then "she calls back with my father," McDaniels says. And they dropped a

ELIAS SCHENDLER

8, Basalt, Colo.

What he collects GARDEN GNOMES

How many he has 37—"I want to wind up with 100."

Where he keeps them "I have a gnome garden with plants and a table with big gnomes on it."

How he got started "I've been collecting since I was 6 or 7. I got into them because there was a gnome camp at an environmental center I went to and we built gnome houses."

Why he loves them "They're cool little creatures that are like people but smaller and have little red hats. They have cool stories and they're friends with animals." Elias' dad, Auden Schendler, says, "Elias is into nature. He sees them as a connection to the world."

His favorite "I like all of them, they're all cool. But one that's really funny is holding candy."

Where he gets them "Some I get as gifts. Some I buy. There's this garden store that has a gnome section. Also I buy on Amazon. Sometimes I buy old gnomes. My friend Jimmy brought me one from an estate sale. And some just show up at my house because they want to be part of my gnome village."
